Michelle Davis chronicles how her seventeen-year-old son Nathan escaped near death after being stomped by a fifteen-hundred-pound bull named Vegas at the Gratiot County fair in Alma, Mich., on Aug. 9, 2014.

As abruptly as the ride ended, Nathan's health drastically changed as he found himself fighting for life in a small, rural hospital. Michelle takes readers on a rollercoaster ride as she recounts her family's journey leading up to Nathan's accident, the accident itself and the horrific battle of survival that ensued. This profound story will have readers on the edge of their seats as they discover how dedicated family and friends, along with determined medical personnel, witnessed miracle after miracle as Nathan clung to life.

Eighteen and three-fourths gallons of blood was what it took to save Nathan Davis in two and a half weeks' time. In the midst of it all, the Davis family found an unexpected gift by an unsuspecting giver: hope on a bull named Vegas.

There are no coincidences, only God moments!

"Michelle Davis's book is an inspiration. It is a tale of faith, prayer, and miracles....His survival was nothing short of miraculous...."
